Value-based Care Model

Why value-based healthcare?

In recent years, there has been an increasing focus on value-based care, with CMS and commercial payers moving away from the traditional fee-for-service approach where providers and facilities are paid by the number of healthcare services delivered.

Instead, they are moving toward a value-based approach that pays (and rewards) providers and facilities for improving overall patient health and reducing the impacts of long term chronic disease.

The value-based care model benefits everyone

- ✓ Overall community health improves, and health spending on medical emergencies and hospitalization decreases.
- ✓ Patients receive improved healthcare & quality of life through prevention/more effective management of chronic conditions.
- ✓ Providers are incentivized to put the patient first and focus on prevention, leading to greater patient satisfaction and higher reimbursements.
- ✓ Payers are able to better control costs and spread risk across populations by identifying and planning for higher risk patients.
